Connecting Waterfronts, Connecting People

Rotterdam - St Petersburg

11 may 2021 / 14:00 - 17:00

Observatorium (Rotterdam) and Waterfront neighbourhood&community (St. Petersburg) cordially invite you to a digital presentation of the Dutch and Russian partners talking about waterfront developments from both an artistic and environmental perspective, preluding the upcoming collaborative project Sea of Orange on the waterfront of Lomonosov (aka Oranienbaum), St Petersburg.

In may 2021 the land-art and placemaking project Sea of Orange will be launched as part of the development of a free-for-all park on the waterfront of the Gulf of Finland In the city of Lomonosov. The Sea of Orange is the outcome of a research program which involved several site-visits, lectures and workshops involving young students, governments, ecologists, historians, artists and local residents and stake-holders. The Sea of Orange deals with placemaking processes, new nature and climate-adaptation and creating a cultural and recreational destination on an unidentified piece of reclaimed land from the sea.

The Sea of Orange is a collaboration between artist collective Observatorium from Rotterdam and Waterfront neighbourhood&community; an international interdisciplinary project implemented by the Street Art Research Institute and the Danish Cultural Institute in St. Petersburg. The focus of Waterfront project is the city's embankments, coastal areas and the problems and opportunities related to their use.

The NL-RU collaboration wants to strengthen the cultural exchange between the twin-cities of Rotterdam and St Petersburg and is funded by the Creative Fund NL through their international program; Inclusive cities and societies through design in Russia, Morocco, Turkey and Egypt.
